FAILS TO SEE PREMIER

Poincare Refuses to Give Him
Personal Hearing, Asked by Embassy.

PARIS, May 26.—The New York Herald correspondent was informed to-night that Mr. Crane, who is in Paris, has been refused a personal audience by the French Premier, Raymond Poincare, and that he has been refused a personal audience by the French Premier, Raymond Poincare, and that he has been refused a personal audience by the French Premier, Raymond Poincare.

Although it was admitted this afternoon that there is no truth in the reports from Cairo to the effect that Charles R. Crane, former American Minister to China, was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment by a French military court in Damascus for inciting Syrian rebels, the French Foreign Office did not hesitate to state the fact that there seemed to be some connection between Mr. Crane's activities and the Syrian situation.

In fact, French suspicion of Mr. Crane's sympathy is declared by some to have been the reason for the refusal of Mr. Poincare, Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, to grant a personal hearing asked on Mr. Crane's behalf by the American Embassy. This afternoon the former American Minister was allowed merely a brief interview with the secretary of the bureau charged with handling Asiatic affairs.

The nature of that conversation was not revealed, but it is understood that Mr. Crane repeated his previous assertions that he had not tried to stir up any excitement in Damascus, and that the native demonstration in which he figured was organized entirely without his knowledge or collaboration.

It was the trial of a young student at the American College in Beirut, charged with being one of the leaders of the manifestation, resulting in a sentence of fifteen years, which evidently inspired the erroneous dispatch from Cairo.

Foreign Office officials, in commenting on the situation, deplored the effort of a group of non-Europeans to support pan-Arabic and French propaganda, and without directly accusing Mr. Crane of any such motives, called attention to the fact that his views expressed in Damascus and Cairo recently were disavowed by the American Consulate at Beirut.

The Journal des Debats to-night, apparently after official conversations on the Quai d'Orsay, declared: "It is certain that Mr. Crane, during his sojourn in Syria, showed a wholly incorrect attitude by carrying on anti-French and

Would Discontinue Nobel Peace Prize

LONDON, May 26.—The Nobel Prize Committee, it is reported in a Central News dispatch from Christiania, purposes introducing a bill in the Swedish Parliament to amend the laws governing the Nobel Peace Prize Foundation so that the award of the peace prize may be provisionally discontinued. The money saved would go to swell the main fund, out of which all the prizes are paid.

pan-Arabic propaganda. He was not expelled for the very good reason that immediately after the incidents provoked by his visit, he left as soon as possible.

THE NEW YORK HERALD correspondent was informed to-night that Mr. Crane, who is in Paris, has been refused a personal audience by the French Premier, Raymond Poincare, and that he has been refused a personal audience by the French Premier, Raymond Poincare, and that he has been refused a personal audience by the French Premier, Raymond Poincare.

PARIS, May 26 (Associated Press).—Charles R. Crane has told a number of French Senators that a continuance of the French military administration of Syria will cost France a half billion to a billion francs a year and will require an army of 100,000 troops. One of the Senators who has heard Mr. Crane's views, Senator Victor Berard, has undertaken to present them to Premier Poincare. It is Mr. Crane's desire to bring to the attention of the French Government facts relating to Syria of which he thinks the Government is not aware, and which he believes they will hasten to correct when they know the actual situation.

It appears that a check for $1,000, signed by Mr. Crane and found in the pocket of one of his Syrian friends, who took part in a demonstrative farewell to him at Damascus, was seemingly the principal reason for the French military authorities in Damascus to believe that the American was inciting sedition. The check was for advance expenses in connection with a caravan journey into the interior, which Mr. Crane had planned for next autumn.

In a letter, in whose pocket the check was found, was one of eight Syrians sentenced by French courts-martial for varying terms of imprisonment for participating in the farrow which the French construed as a riot. The doctor received the longest sentence, fifteen years.

The French official opinion regarding Mr. Crane's visit to Syria is that he acquired a point of view regarding the future of Syria when he was there at the head of an investigating commission three years ago which has developed into a sort of doctrine which he is advocating at some times with some sharpness. But they do not doubt his good faith, and there was never any question of bringing him to account in any way, although troubles did develop from his visit.

GARMENT WORKERS' INJUNCTION UPHeld

Appellate Division Continues
Restraint on Employers by Four to One Vote.

Opinion Cites Benefit of Avoiding Strikes and Resorting to Courts.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday in a four to one vote upheld an injunction granted by Justice Robert F. Wagner restraining the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers Association from breaking a contract with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and the Joint board of the Cloak Makers Union of the city of New York. The injunction restrained the employers' association from abrogating the week work system or taking action to increase the hours of labor or expelling from membership in their organization such as might agree to resume work after terms had been made with the union. The contract between the employers and the unions expires June 1. The case was said to be the first in which representatives of labor had undertaken to enjoin their employers.

Justice Alfred R. Page, who wrote the majority opinion, referred to the novelty of the injunction, and took occasion to remark that the "remedy is mutual" and that "the law does not have one rule for the employer and another for the employee."

"In a court of justice," he continued, "they stand on exact equality, each case to be decided upon the same principles of law, impartially applied to the facts of the case."

"It is urged that, by reason of changes in the expense of living and the condition of unemployment, terms have become onerous, and the expense of production makes the business unprofitable to the manufacturer. This excuse for the non-performance of a contract has never been accepted by the courts. Unless the parties have stipulated in terms for relief because of changed conditions they must perform their contract as it is written."

This injunction, by preserving the status quo, prevented the continuance of an industrial impasse, in which the employers were striving to force a change of the contract relations of the parties.

"Experience has shown that such industrial struggles lead to lockouts, strikes and acts of violence. In the end one side or the other is compelled to yield, and the financial exhaustion. Both sides have lost. If the employer is successful the men return to work embittered. If the employees win they have inflicted incalculable loss on the employer, and the advantage gained does not offset the loss of wages during the period of the strike."

"But, above all, the employer and employee, instead of cooperating to promote the success of the industry, become permanently divided into hostile groups, each resentful and suspicious of the other. Therefore, when the employee, instead of resorting to force to secure his rights, an archaic method abandoned by civilized men, seeks redress in the tribunal constituted by the government to protect its citizens in their rights and to redress their wrongs, it is the duty of the court to stop all individuals' attempts to take the law into their hands and compel both parties to await orderly judicial determination of the controversy."
